This program has been approved by IIABA for the Associate in Insurance Production (AIP) designation. This designation will be conferred by IIABA upon all students who complete the classroom work and reporting requirements of the Elite Sales Training course. The designation provides your agency and the student with higher credibility to the public and within the industry.

These are independent book reviews that will help you build your sales library. However, please note that FAIA's AIP Elite Sales program is not affiliated in any way with the publishers of these materials.

The class consists of many educational features that have proven essential in the successful development of a sales professional including: role playing, etiquette enhancement, and effective negotiation training.

The Benefits:

The class will be limited to conference room-size so that the students will receive individual attention during and after the classes.

The Elite Force course is designed to build accountability into the daily habits of students.

As such, FAIA will contact students monthly via e-mail, and students are required to report sales activities to FAIA. That activity will be reviewed quarterly with the AIP class.
